

WELCOME

The 2016 European Meeting of ISMPP focussed on practical skills that drive successful publication delivery and on providing participants with tools they could put to use in their day-to-day jobs. This year's theme describes the next logical step in this approach by addressing the need to share our practical know-how with the multiple stakeholders we partner with to communicate scientific data effectively.

To this end, we will examine the implications of data sharing (with attention to ICMJE's recent proposal); hear from a panel of industry leaders as they describe their publication teams' best practices; expand our understanding of and renew our commitment to transparency, and explore the concept of publication "reach". Our poster reception, roundtables and "speed research", with improvements suggested by members, will return as will the opportunity to learn about cutting edge products and services from our exhibitors.

Find out if our efforts to exceed last year's meeting are successful. Reignite your passion for work, catch up with colleagues, make new contacts, explore the City's pub culture, and check out some of the world's best sightseeing. We look forward to seeing you in London!

Special thanks to the following groups and to all others who provided support for the 2017 European Meeting.
